Yes, Real Estate is Still King!

In response to the pandemic and the resultant almost wholesale pivot to alternative work arrangements, real questions were raised as to what the implications were for hard assets in a virtual world. With shifts to Work-from-home, online shopping, curbside pick-up/delivery, etc, the risk was that our current system, which is predicated on the movement of people and the mantra of location, location, location, would become obsolete with devastating impacts on residential, commercial and industrial markets.

However, this has not been the case. Instead, real estate demand in residential and industrial markets has soared with commercial and office markets also primed to return to their former glory and more. In many markets, business openings have exceeded closures for some time and even large urban cores are cool again as evidenced by Toronto being selected as one of the top cities globally to Work-from-home.

Rural and smaller urban areas near and far have benefit significantly from some aspects of the pandemic with many experiencing record growth in their housing markets and increased commercial interest. For larger cities, the “flight to rural areas” hasn’t been as pronounced as expected and activity is recovering. However, more rural areas are now struggling with growth that may be higher than they expected and urban cores have yet to see the full recovery of their office markets.

This session is a follow-up from the 2021 “Is Real Estate Still King” session and will explore updated data and trends that will shape our communities in the coming year.

Innovative opportunities to improve municipal operations and reduce utility bills, while enhancing electric grid reliability

Ontario’s businesses and communities are looking at innovative ways to use electricity more efficiently, supplying more of their own energy needs, and moving towards electrification. More and more communities are adopting solar panels, energy storage, demand management tools, among other solutions. These changes are contributing to economic development, providing businesses with new sources of revenue, and helping communities achieve their sustainability goals.

As Ontario’s Independent Electricity System Operator, it is our job to integrate all of these changes and ensure that electricity remains reliable and affordable for years to come.

Innovative projects funded over the past several years through the IESO’s Grid Innovation Fund have provided valuable learnings economic developers can leverage to provide benefits to their communities, reduce municipal utility bills, and enhance electric grid reliability.

This session will provide an overview of Ontario’s changing electricity grid, with a panel featuring local community representatives discussing their own innovative energy projects and what it means for their communities.

Presented by Independent Electricity System Operator (IESO)

The Remarkable Transformation of Communities with Little Hope of Success

Explore the journey of two similar, yet contrasting, communities who found themselves in the face of economic crisis. While Scarborough and Kitchener took unique paths in response, both are now experiencing unprecedented economic growth. Learn how Scarborough’s community-driven approach and Kitchener’s government-enable approach were founded on similar principles of community engagement, partnerships, risk-taking and innovation.

3 Learner Outcomes:

Perseverance - No matter how challenged you think you are in your community, anything is possible

Innovation – Innovative ways to identify and use your resources, no matter the resource basket available

Collaboration - learn how build relationships and sustain them and inspire your stakeholders and volunteers to become active partners working together toward a common goal.

COVID - The Game Changer - Supporting Main Street Ontario in a Post-COVID World

March 2020, Ontario's main streets became ghost towns, the streets were bare of people, businesses and cars. Business Improvement Areas across the province stayed "on the street", working on taskforces, guiding businesses and creating vibrancy where barely a whisper was heard. Finally, there was and is true recognition on what "Shop Local" truly means - it means human interaction, the personal touch and capital "C" Community. Partnerships were formed overnight from groups that had been siloed before and the ghostly images began to take human form as we began the work of bringing people back to our main streets. This session will focus on how these partnerships brought people together and how we need to keep working together and focus on our main street communities.

Presenters:

- Kay Matthews, Executive Director, Ontario BIA Association
- Judy Morgan, 360 Collective – Retail Analysts and Main Street Strategists
- John Archer, 360 Collective – Retail Analysts and Main Street Strategists

The Town of Lincoln and Civiconnect - Youth Skills Studio

Looking for an analysis of the current research on youth workforce development challenges facing Ontario including skills gaps and low youth retention? This session discusses the current workforce readiness initiatives in place for youth across the province and critically evaluates why many of these initiatives are not yielding substantive results.

Learn about the Youth Skills Studio, an innovative and collaborative approach to youth workforce readiness developed by the Town of Lincoln and Civiconnect that operationalizes work-integrated learning, skills training, and digital technology to benefit both youth and local SMEs.

Presenters:

- Paul Di Ianni, Director of Economic Development and Communications, Town of Lincoln
- Kailene Jackson, Co-founder and Executive Director, Civiconnect
- Cameron Rotz, Economic Development Assistant, Town of Lincoln

Be the Master of Your Own Fate: Reclaiming the Strategy Process

Looking to reclaim the economic development strategic process? Paul Pirri wants to empower economic developers to reclaim the process by providing a step-by-step overview of the Town of Whitby's economic development strategy process. Be Unique - Be Direct - Be Bold - Try new things!

Making Use of OMAFRA Resources to Bring Back Rural Main Streets

The suggestion that the Municipality of South Dundas should look at developing and implement a Streetscape Project was highlighted in a report that was conducted under the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture, Food and Rural Affairs' First Impressions Community Exchange (FICE) program. Other OMAFRA Resources such as the Downtown Revitalization Program and the Rural Economic Development Funding Program played a significant part in the project. For more than half a century, the Village of Morrisburg has lacked a proper Main Street atmosphere. It all started back in the mid-1950's when about a third of the Village of Morrisburg, including the Main Street area, which was the original business district was lost forever under a wall of water. The reason for this loss was because of the flooding required to construct the St. Lawrence Seaway due to the need to deepen the seaway to allow larger ships to navigate the river. This session will outline the OMAFRA resources available, how to make use of them, and steps taken by the Municipality of South Dundas on how it implemented the Morrisburg Streetscape Project. The session will also explore the lessons learned during the process and the bumps encountered along the way from start to finish.

Presenter: Rob Hunter, Economic Development Officer, Municipality of South Dundas

Growing the Food Economy

The food processing and food service industries are an important economic driver in communities across Ontario. In 2020, Ontario's food and beverage processing sector accounted for over $14B in GDP and employed over 105,000 people, and the food services sector had over $21B in sales and employs over 309,000 people. This session will feature Restaurant Canada and Farm Credit Canada sharing their insights and providing the latest research on sub-sector trends and opportunities to retain and grow this important aspect of our economy through the economic recovery. Attendees will also hear from a municipality that will share their recent efforts to support the food processing and restaurants sector in their community.

Options to invest in Canada through business succession

SuccessionMatching is a two-sided marketplace that matches buyers and sellers of small businesses. Finding financing has always been one of the biggest challenges for buyers looking to purchase a business but traditional lenders are turning down transition loans at an alarming rate. Matching international buyers with sellers in Canada is one part of the solution. But how can international buyers establish themselves in Canada? Fragomen will provide some of the available solutions.
